

Dental Core Training Induction

09 September 2025

Katie Symington

Dental Training Manager

What is induction?

There are two types of induction

Educational

Concentrating on the training and education aspects of your post

Clinical

Delivered by your host organisation on clinical issues relating to your post

Why have induction?

To help you understand the systems in place and how an organisation operates will help to make sure that you deliver safe, effective and efficient care to patients.

It is mandatory to take part in the Induction offered by your host organisation.

Your host organisation will provide you with an Induction as it is an introduction to policies and procedures that are relevant, accessible and proportionate to your role.
